Big Picture/Summary

Trough of low pressure remains over the area bringing SW gradient winds. This morning showers are possible (see details below) then aftn clearing with increasing breeze.

Outlook

Mon June 23

A backdoor cold front pushes thru in the morning but is weak. High pressure begins to take over. Looking for a modest S sea breeze in afternoon but could take a while to get going.

Outlook

Wed June 25

A weak cold front moves offshore early AM, then immediately stalls just offshore, bringing little/no wind in the morning. Weak S-SW sea breeze winds are possible, but forecast is still uncertain as to where the front will stall and if additional low pressure may be developing on it.

Outlook

Thurs June 26

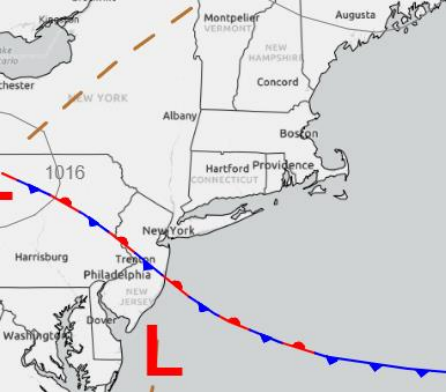

The stalled frontal boundary will likely be sitting to the south of us, but there is a lot of uncertainty with its location. The stalled front could be sitting much closer to Block and bring very light winds - or it could be just south of Block and bring stronger NE-ENE winds (this is what models have been showing the last few days)

Outlook
Fri June 27

Lower confidence forecast. Stalled front may be shifting southward and bringing stronger NE-E winds to the area along with clouds and potentially showers. Wind speeds could be as low as 8-13 or high as 15-20. Stay tuned.
